Huge Art Collection to Be Sold Feb. 18

The large collection of paintings by American and European artists formed by the late Mrs. Joseph E. Goldblatt of Chicago and her son Maurice H. Goldblatt, will be placed on sale by auction at Grant's Art galleries, 21 South Wabash avenue, on the afternoon of Thursday, Feb. 18, at 2 p. m. The paintings to be offered for sale will be placed on exhibition on Feb. 15. They include examples of Inness, Wyant, Murphy, Waugh, Martin, Lawson, Blakelock, Constable, Turner, Makart, Pasini, Kowalski, Deschamps, Corot, Diaz, Clays, Isabey, Mauve, Merle, Gerome, Schreyer, Courbet, Raffaelli, Rousseau, Fragonard, Lhermitte, Bruck-Harjes, Raeburn, Lenbach, Breton, Jacquet, Sully, Vernet and Kitchell. Some of the canvases in the sale were acquired from M. Knoedler & Son and other New York dealers, and at sales at the American Art galleries in New York and at Christie's in London. Individual paintings in the collection were better known in New York and in Europe than in Chicago, and the collection has been specially visited by directors of foreign museums and out-of-town artists at various times. Mr. Goldblatt is selling the collection, owing to his decision to give up his residence on South Park avenue, since the death of his mother.

Prominent among the paintings to be sold is a large John Constable, "On the River Stour"—a "river scene with lock, bridge, figures and horses," as it was described in the catalog when sold at auction at Christie's in London in 1913. It is comparable to the artist's "Hay-Wain," painted in 1821, and now in the National gallery in London, and his "Leaping Horse," painted in 1825, which is in the Burlington Diploma gallery. "On the River Stour" was purchased from the artist for S. Hammond of Wellbury, Yorkshire, and was subsequently sold to Joseph Sammon of London, who in turn sold it to a Dr. Ellison. From the latter it came by inheritance to Mrs. Cunningham, for whom it was sold to a London dealer. It next came to the collection of Horace Townsend of New York, from whose estate it was purchased by Mr. Goldblatt, thus preserving the record direct from the artist.

RECORD LOW PRICES AT CHICAGO ART SALE

"The Constable" Appraised at $150,000 Goes to a London
Deale, for $50,000.

Tues 2/19/26

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (P).—The Goldblatt collection of paintings, including the famous "On the River Stour," by John Constable, was sold at public auction today in the Grant Galleries for prices said by dealers to be among the lowest on record for a collection of first importance. The Constable, appraised at $150,000, went to Dykes & Sons of London for slightly less than $50,000. The Dykes bid was the only one received.

The collection included several examples of the work of Ralph Albert Blakelock, a Courbet, a Raeburn, a Corot, a Gilbert Stuart, an Inness, two Turners and a Deschamps, besides numerous other works of note.

"The Twins" by Louis Deschamps, appraised at $25,000, brought $2,225, and the Gilbert Stuart "Portrait of a Gentleman," valued at $10,000, was sold for $700. Hugues Merle's "The Bather" and Constant Mayer's "Reaper," both estimated as worth $10,000, were sold for $1,200 each. The J. M. W. Turner "Italian Landscape," appraised at $15,000, was sold for $1,600. An Inness "Landscape—Stockbridge, Mass.," valued at $7,500, went for $575, and the Corot "Petit Pacage," appraised at $10,000, sold for $2,800.

It was said by the Grant Galleries that most of the works went to individuals, few besides the Constable falling to dealers.

Breton, a Raffaelli, and a landscape by Gustave Courbet. A large group of paintings by contemporary American artists includes work by Chauncey Ryder, Elmer Schofield, Bruce Crane and Leonard Ochtman. The

JEAN CHARLES CAZIN
French: 1841-1901

45—By the River

A student in the French Ecole des Arts Decoratifs, this eminent painter of landscapes and historical subjects spent several years in traveling and studying in England, Italy and Holland. He settled in Paris in 1875 and began to exhibit in the following year, obtaining many medals and other distinctions. In spite of his success as a painter of historical subjects, his claim on the recognition of posterity will center in his landscapes, his delicate and refined transcripts of nature being eagerly sought after by collectors.

Signed at lower right. Height, 9 inches; width, 7 inches.

PIERRE CARRIER BELLEUSE

French: 1851—

46—The Ballet Girl

Pupil of Ecole des Beaux Arts and Edgar Degas. Like Degas the ballet girl was his favorite subject.

Pastel. Signed at lower left. Height, 46 inches; width, 24 inches.

245

JEAN BAPTISTE CAMILLE COROT

French: 1796-1875

47—Petit Pacage (The Bypath)

He lived in Italy from 1825 to 1828. His first picture was hung in the Salon of 1827, and was awarded a medal in 1831. He traveled much in his earlier years and was one of the most prolific painters of the nineteenth century. His work was highly esteemed in his lifetime, but it was not until after his death that his pictures sold at sensational figures. Medals: Second class, 1833; first class, 1848 and 1855; second class, 1867; Legion of Honor, 1846; Officer, 1867; Diploma to the Memory of Deceased Artists, Exposition Universelle, 1878.

This picture was painted between 1855 and 1860.

Recorded and illustrated in A. Robaut's "L'Oeuvre de Corot," Vol. II, No. 1131.

Photographic reproductions of pages 364 and 365 from Alfred Robaut's "L'Oeuvre de Corot" will be given to the purchaser of this painting. On these pages this painting is recorded and reproduced.

HANS MAKART
Austrian: 1840-1884

75—Announcing the End of Diana's Hunt

Makart was born at Salzburg and became a pupil of the Vienna Academy under Ruben, afterwards studying for four years with Piloty at Munich. At the age of twenty-nine he was invited to settle at Vienna by the Emperor Franz Joseph. Honors were showered upon him; he was the vogue; his studio in the Ring Strasse presented a prodigality of rare and beautiful fabrics and works of art; he aroused the German Philistines to an appreciation of the beautiful, and was the first German "painter" of the century. He was an inspired painter, whose merit it was to have announced to the Germans afresh in an overwhelming style that revelation of color which had been forgotten since the Venetians and Rubens.

Professor Alfred Chatain, in his certificate of authentication, writes: "The above referred to painting I hereby certify to be an original work by Hans Makart. This painting possesses evidence of being an original in all its characteristics of style, technique, color tonality and composition, and expression of the master's artistic qualities.

The signature is positively genuine. This painting is a true representative of Hans Makart's style of composition and decorative coloring, which is wonderful in tonality and harmony.

In confirmation of the above official opinion I hereby acknowledge its authenticity over my seal."

(Signed) PROF. ALFRED CHATAIN.

There are also two Turners—an oil and a water color—both purchased in London. A painting, "The Twins," by Louis Deschamps, was exhibited in the Paris salon of 1886, and is an excellent example of the work of the artist, who is represented in the Luxembourg by "The Foundling." "The Twins" was purchased by Mr. Goldblatt from Knoedler's of New York. Another work from the same source is "The Polish Farmer's Team," by A. Wierusz Kowalski. The painting, "Announcing the End of Diana's Hunt," by Hans Makart, was formerly in the Gotchenau palace, belonging to the ruling family of Russia. It was sold to a dealer, from whom it was purchased by a captain of the royal guards of Russia, who in turn sold it to the present owner.

There are two small Blakelocks, one a sunset and the other a moonlight scene, in the artist's best manner, both well-authenticated. There is an Inness, painted in Stockbridge, Mass., and a drawing and a painting by Corot, the latter being recorded and reproduced in Roubat's book on the artist's work. The drawing was purchased from a private collection in Nivernes, France. There are two oils and a water color by Diaz, a marine by Paul Jean Clays, and a figure by Hugues Merle also to be offered. The Merle is "The Bather," exhibited in the salon of 1870, by an artist who was a contemporary and a rival of Bourgureau, and sometimes regarded as his superior. "Blowing Bubbles" is by Bruck-Lajos, a great Hungarian artist who was a pupil of Munkaczy. There are two Schreyers, by Jules

French section also includes canvases by Harpignies, Troyon and William Maris. Authentications on various paintings in the collection have been furnished by Elliott Daingerfield, Harry W. Wattrous, Leroy Ireland, G. Frank Muller, Harry Dykes of London, and other experts. Mr. Goldblatt himself is well known as an expert, and is retained in that capacity by the Bryden Art galleries of Chicago and the Metropolitan galleries of New York. He is also known in musical circles as a concert violinist and as a successful composer for the violin and piano. He was for several years a director of the First National bank of Berwyn. He is sailing for Europe in the spring to gather material for a book on Leonardo da Vinci and his school, and to prepare a series of articles for the Burlington Magazine of London giving evidence in regard to
